Infax's CaseQ solution displays and organizes courtroom-specific case information on commercial grade monitors in real-time. The CaseQ software integrates with the court's current case management system to obtain the docket for the day, then filters through and organizes the cases by the courtrooms in which they are scheduled. After the cases have been filtered, CaseQ pushes the courtroom-specific dockets to the respective monitors outside individual courtrooms.

The CaseQ user interface allows court personnel to change the order of the day's proceedings by simply dragging and dropping the cases up or down a courtroom's calendar. Personnel can also update a party's status with information such as present, in custody, interpreter needed, or appeared. Once changes are saved, the appropriate monitors will be automatically updated.
