

Infax's CourtBoard solution displays public notices throughout judicial facilities via commercial grade monitors eliminating the traditional need for printing and posting to a corkboard.

With CourtBoard, digital public notices cycle through automatically, one page at a time. Courts can also add the optional touchscreen interface that allows visitors to search for notices. Using various filters, users can browse through categories or search for specific notices by applicant name, date, or type. The solution also integrates with the court's existing website, ensuring that users are able to access these notices anytime, anywhere.

CourtBoard provides an efficient, eco-friendly alternative that doubles as a safeguard against document theft.
